REPUBLICANS ACT FAIR

House Stands By Promises Made in Platform and During Campaign.

Governor Hadley has issued the following statement in reply to the labored defenses of the actions of the Senate made by Senators Crossley and Oliver:

Much Talk and No Action

I have been reading these labored defenses of the record of the State Senate and the efforts of these gentlemen to confuse the issues are both interesting and amusing. They apparently think that an abundance of language and figures of speech based on incidents of ancient and modern history will mislead the public. But the people nowadays are more interested in what is done than what is said, and all the personal criticism that these gentlemen might indulge in cannot obscure the record that the Democratic Senate and the Republican House made for themselves during the session of the Legislature.

During the last campaign the Republican party declared in favor of the proper regulation by a public service commission of the public utilities of the State and the Republican House passed the public service commission bill. The Republican State Platform declared against passes and discrimination in the Railroad business and the Republican House passed the antipass law and the law confining railroads to the business of transportation.

Republicans Fulfill Promises

The Republican Party in its State Platform declared in favor of local option and for the enactment of laws that further eliminate the evils of the liquor traffic. The Republican House passed a bill separating the brewery from the saloon, a district local option bill, a county unit bill, increasing the amount of the dram shop license.

All of these bills were defeated by the Democratic Senate, notwithstanding the fact that the Democratic State Platform had declared in general terms in favor of some of these measures.

The result would be difficult to understand were it not for the fact that the railroad and brewery lobby, composed of leading Democratic politicians and former Democratic State officials participated in every Democratic council that was held during the session of the Forty-fifth General Assembly.

It is not surprising that the older and more experienced leaders of the Senate have had nothing to say in defense of the Record of that body, and the only ones, who have come forward to defend it are young zealots like Senator Oliver and Mr. Crossley, whose partisanship usually exceed their judgement. Both of these gentlemen accuse me of an attempt to build up a political machine, because the House passed the Board of control bill, which would have substituted a bipartisan board for the 120 partisan members of the various boards that now manage the eleemosynary and penal institutions of the state.

The truth of the matter is that neither the Republican party nor myself ever declared in favor of this measure. Four years ago this bill was introduced in the House by Mr. Atkinson, then the Democratic floor leader, afterwards speaker and now assistant attorney-general. In this Legislature the bill was drawn and urged by Dr. Muir, one of the leading Democratic members in the House.

While I did not advocate the passage of this bill, I do believe it would have placed the management of our institutions upon a better business basis, and have resulted in a great saving of the people's money.

Explains Process of Measure

It is urged in defense of the action of the Senate in defeating the public service commission bill that it would have deprived the cities of their right to regulate their own public utilities. As I have heretofore stated, I drew this bill at the request of Senator McDavid, one of the leading Democratic members of the Senate, and Judge Lindsay, Judge Johnson, and Mr. Barker, leading Democratic members of the House, advised with me during its preparation. And it was at the special instance of Senator McDavid that this bill was made to apply to the large cities of the State.

While I agreed with him, that this was advisable, yet in my message to the Senate, I stated that if it was further desired to continue the experiment of the present cumbersome and ineffective system provided by the act of 1907, the proposed bill could be easily amended so as not to include cities, in which there existed public utilities commissions.

Folk Not in Accord

Senator Oliver complains in his statement because I quoted from Governor Folk's messages in favor of some of the measures I urged the Senate to approve. While Gov. Folk and I do not agree upon all questions, there are no questions upon which he and the Democratic members of the Senate are in accord. And I learned early in the session that I could do nothing that would be more displeasing to the Democratic members of the Senate than to quote from the public utterances of Gov. Folk, except to leave in office his appointees.

In fact for a month the Democratic members of the Senate refused to confirm my appointments, to the detriment and disorganization of the public service, solely because I would not remove Thomas K. Skinner and Jas. L. Carlisle, whom Gov. Folk had appointed election commissioners in St. Louis. And the only grievances that I could discover against these men was that they had honestly discharged the duties of their office and given the people of St. Louis an honest election.

The truth of the matter is that there has not been in the history of this State, a more complete example of Bourbon and reactionary tendencies and of the partnership between the railroad lobby and a certain school of Democratic politicians than is to be found in the record of the State Senate.

Line on Missouri Politics

And the narrow, partisan purposes of this body were never better illustrated than when it opposed the appropriation for the Immigration Commission, for the reason, as one of the Democratic members of the Senate declared, that they did not want any more people to come to Missouri, like those, who had been coming in recent years.

I want to say in justice to Senator McDavid and Senator Anthony however, that on this occasion they vigorously arraigned their Democrat associates for their narrow and unreasoning partisanship.

The action of the Democratic members of the Senate has clearly defined the issues and alignment in Missouri politics for the next four years. Every bill in regulation of the Railroad or the liquor traffic, that the House passed was opposed by the railroad and brewery lobby and every one of these measures, which the railroad and brewery lobby opposed the Democratic Senate killed.

Interesting Louisiana Letter

Editor Tribune: Perhaps a few lines from the capital city of Louisiana would be of interest to your many readers and my friends in particular.

Am down in Louisiana in the interest of Jasper & Sellmeyer buying and shipping to them cars of new potatoes which they handle extensively.

The weather has been very unfavorable since my arrival, as there have been heavy rains almost daily. Today is more favorable and much cooler. Sunday and Monday, May 16 and 17 were gay days here as our battleship, Mississippi lay in the river and thousands boarded her and were taken through all parts to inspect the ship by permission and with guides. On Monday the 17th officers and sailors paraded through the streets, accompanied by L. S. U. cadets, followed by bands and two local military companies with bands. The crowds began to assemble at the opening hours until the noon hour. Confederate flags dipped to salute the stars and stripes. Baton Rouge has not seen such a military display since its bombardment forty years ago.

During the rains, which retarded my work, I went to Hammond, Louisiana, which is forty-five miles from here, and where many of my acquaintances made in Illinois years ago, reside. The line of railroad built by Illinois Central to connect main line to the line here, was once known as the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley but now owned by Illinois Central, runs through a dense timber country, which is level though soil not very good, but is being cleared and put in vegetables and fruit. The timber is immense pine, magnolia and oak. The season for magnolia is nearly over but can see the flowers now turning yellow, which resemble large snow balls covering the trees. Hammond has grown to be a fine city. Leave here tomorrow to go farther toward the Gulf, across the river for a while. Later will go to Natchez, Mississippi. If I have time will send communication from there. Respectfully,
W. C. GRANDALL.

For the Girl Graduate

The month of roses and perfect days belongs to the "sweet girl graduate" quite as truly as to the bride. Among the fascinating accessories of the graduating outfit are the bretelles and girdle made of ribbon, and the novel lingerie sash, for wear with any sheer frock. Attractive girdles are made with flowered ribbon and adorned with ribbon rosebuds, or of the plain satin ribbon finished with a rosette and ends. Another style consists of narrow ribbon closed with a buckle. Flowered ribbon and lace form beautiful shoulder scarves, while the wrist bag of white satin covered with a network of tied gold ribbon is particularly charming as a gift.—The New Idea Woman's Magazine for June.

Booze Makers Coming.

The St. Louis times of Saturday says editorially that nine big booze makers are moving their plants to St. Louis from Tennessee. The liquor interests must feel firmly entrenched in this state if the Times speaks the truth. Will the distilling firms have to find another location after 1910. "Let

20 Beautiful Post Cards, 6c.

FARM PROGRESS, of St. Louis, Mo., the biggest and best farm and agricultural paper printed in the United States offers to send to any reader of this paper, twenty beautiful colored post cards, no two alike, if they will send 6 cents to cover the cost of mailing and sorting the cards, and at the same time send them the names of five farmers, who are not now subscribers to FARM PROGRESS.

These cards are printed on the best stock and are much better than the average card, and are not the ordinary looking, trashy card sent out by many concerns with premium offers.

If you would like to have twenty pretty post cards, just send 6 cents in stamps to FARM PROGRESS, St. Louis, Mo., and tell them that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

the people rule." Following is the Times editorial:

Three significant and helpful additions to the commercial and industrial growth of St. Louis appear in the removal to this city of three large and long established distilling firms of Memphis, which have been driven out of Tennessee by the prospective operation of the law prohibiting the manufacture of liquor in that state. It is stated in business circles that six other distilling houses now in Tennessee will remove to St. Louis for a like reason, and because they believe this to be the most advantageous distributing point in the Middle West.

These nine large and old firms—that of Semmes & Co. goes back to the days of Washington—bring to this city not only a great capital and an immense established business but they remove to St. Louis the principals in their firms and families, their office and road forces and their families, and all their skilled employees and their families. The concentration of so considerable a wealth, business and population would almost make a town of itself. That it will prove noticeably stimulating to the general growth of even so large a city as this is apparent.

No feeling but of regretful solicitude for Memphis and Nashville is entertained in Missouri, which reaps the benefits of Tennessee's folly. If the larger towns of that state were to secure actual prohibition by the driving out of the liquor manufacturers, there are those who might derive some consolation in that fact. But they will not. Just as much liquor will now be sold illicitly as was before sold legally. The name is banished, but the shade remains.

It is given out in the press that Claude R. Ball of Montgomery County, a brother of David Ball, has officially announced his candidacy for Congress against Champ Clark. If there is any likelihood of Claude, in case he is defeated, making an ass of himself like his brother David did, when Cowherd beat him, his friends should pull him off the track before he starts.—Huntsville Herald.

St. Louis Live Stock Market

Special to the Tribune.

National Stock Yards, Ill., May 25, 1909—Cattle receipts 5500, half Texas. Market Steady to 10c lower on good grades and 10 to 15c lower on medium and common kinds. Best beef steers $7.00; yearlings ave $5.15 lbs. also brought the same price, and we sold choice heifers at $6.85 to $7.00. Values averaged steady with last Tuesday on all kinds. Choice butcher heifers and yearling steers have been best sellers for some time and supplies of that kind have been Liberal. Stockers and feeders steady. Veal calves steady, top $7.25. Quarantine division supplies are increasing and competition in that division will affect values of medium natives more seriously in the near future. We advise hurrying that kind in. Outlook strong on choice grades.

Hog receipts 1300. Market is strong to 5c higher; top $7.50; bulk $7.20 to $7.40. This looks like a good time to market fat hogs.

Sheep receipts 5000. Market strong. Top Tennessee spring lambs $9.25; natives $8.75; native clipped $8.25; wethers $6.60; ewes $6.35. Don't let this good market get away from you if you have anything to ship.
